

We are currently accepting applications for our next
Peace & Nonviolence Activist-In-Residence
Fall 2018 - Avila University - Kansas City, Missouri, USA

We invite applicants from all backgrounds to apply, regardless of religion, language, nationality, race, ethnicity, origin, socio-economic status, gender or sexual identity.

The intention of this residency program is to host a grassroots activist at Avila University for a time of reflection, recharging, networking, academic engagement, and sharing with our campus and local communities.

Applicants who possess conversational ability in English are preferred. However, translation assistance can be arranged if needed, and the activist can be from anywhere in the world.

The goals of this program are to:

- Inform our campus and wider community of peace and nonviolence issues from a global perspective
- Inspire students and others to become more involved in social activism related to peace and nonviolence
- Interact with groups through the sharing of your history, perspective, and hopes for the future
- Work with our campus to envision our role in issues of peace and nonviolence

Possible activities for the Activist-In-Residence:

- Holding workshops, talks, discussion groups, film screenings, etc.
- Engage with university classes, on-campus or online
- Assist in planning future projects and campaigns
- Be available to informally converse with students, faculty, staff, and others
- Work with members of the Avila community to engage with our local and regional communities in areas

Avila University covers all expenses related to:

- Obtaining a visa, airfare, and ground transportation
- Private housing and meals provided on-campus
- Generous compensation for the time and work spent while in-residence
- Office space for your own reflection, work, and meetings
